1 Listen and Discuss

Read the texts and underline the words or phrases that provide facts and/or opinions.

Collaborative learning promotes teamwork in class. Learners work together in small or large teams. However, it is not always easy for individuals to work effectively with others. Some learners prefer to work on their own first, then share ideas and information. Others are reluctant to share, because they want to impress the teacher with their performance. Negative competition in class tends to prevent students from working together, as they feel that they need to keep what they know to themselves, in order to gain credit against everyone else in class.

What do you think?

Who are they? How do you feel about them?

What do people mean when they say that someone is “self-made”? They usually refer to success stories of individuals who have been able to recognize and utilize opportunities in their lives, for the purposes of improving their personal living standards, gaining respect in their community, and helping others. Can you think of successful “self-made” people in your country? Who are they? How do you feel about them?
A. Before you discuss each issue, brainstorm and think of:
   - phrases you can use to express your opinion/view
   - ways to agree and disagree
   - arguments to support your view

B. Which topic would you like to know more about? Why? Which topic do you find least interesting? Why?

Have you heard of the terms ‘future studies’ or ‘strategic foresight’? Future Studies is an interdisciplinary field that studies and analyzes current and past changes with respect to tomorrow. For example, many people believe that the Earth’s ecosystem will collapse in the near future, while others believe that it will survive. A foresight approach would analyze and highlight the assumptions underpinning such views. Would you choose to take a course on future studies at university?

Infomercials are longer television commercials that include demonstrations of product features and customer comments. A toll-free telephone number and/or website is included for potential buyers accompanied by “an offer you can’t refuse”.

Would you buy it?
3 Conversation

Listen and practice reading the conversation in pairs. Then act it out.

Adnan and Yahya are high school students. They are walking along the corridor, chatting during break.

Adnan: You’ve heard, haven't you? Our chemistry teacher has been transferred.

Yahya: It can't be true. I saw him yesterday. He can't have left. I thought he must still be teaching in our school.

Adnan: Yes, so did I. But apparently, he has been transferred to his home town. So someone else is going to be teaching chemistry.

Yahya: I am sorry to hear that.

Adnan: I saw someone new walking into the chemistry lab. He must be our new teacher…

Yahya: Let’s have a look. No, it can’t be. I don’t believe it. He must be looking for me.

Adnan: What are you talking about? That must be our new teacher.

Yahya: No, it can’t be.

Adnan: Oh, come on. Why not?

Yahya: Because that’s my uncle! He must have known about this but never told me.

Adnan: He must have wanted to surprise you! It's good news, isn't it?

Has it happened to you or someone you know?

About a week ago I went to check my bank account for the umpteenth time, hoping that I’d find some cash. I placed my card in the machine, keyed in my password and to my great delight; there was the money in my account. So I pressed withdrawal, took my card out of the machine, as I was supposed to, and happily walked away…

I must have taken about ten steps or so, when I thought of checking to make sure that I’d put the money away securely. I searched my small bag and my pockets to no avail. I immediately turned and rushed back to the ATM. As I had feared, there was no cash in the slot.

I then checked my account to only get a confirmation that the amount I had requested had in fact been withdrawn. I was really upset and embarrassed. I called the bank and reported the incident. They promised to check the following day.

Fortunately, the machine had a security feature which pulled back cash that was not collected within fifteen or twenty seconds!

I was feeling really foolish to have done such a thing but then I was told that it happens all the time! Would you believe it?

2. Work in pairs. Think about an incident you heard or read about or something that happened to you or someone you know. Make notes.

3. It might help to write the actions/verbs in the order they happened and then add people, objects and places. Lastly, don’t forget to also convey the manner in which things happened. Use your voice, exclamations, adjectives and adverbs.

4. Now use your notes and tell your partner or your class.
1 Two Is Better Than One

1 Listen and Discuss

1. Name some famous husbands and wives from history. Tell the most legendary story you know of a famous couple.

2. Read the texts about some famous marriages from history. Do you think their marriage made it easier for them to achieve certain goals?

Marie and Pierre Curie (1894–1906)

Maria Sklodowska was born in Warsaw in 1867. She was the daughter of a secondary-school teacher. She studied in local schools and received some training in science from her father. Because women were not able to attend university in Poland in the 19th century, Maria left Poland to study at a French university in 1891. Now known by the French name Marie, she worked hard in a laboratory that was owned by Pierre Curie.

Pierre Curie was born in Paris in 1859. He received his early education at home and then joined the Faculty of Sciences at the Sorbonne. He was promoted to Professor in 1900.

Marie and Pierre Curie got married in 1895. Although poor, they were devoted to each other and their research. Their studies of radioactive substances were carried out under difficult conditions. Their laboratory facilities were hardly adequate and they had to do a lot of teaching to earn a living.

In 1898, the couple discovered the elements Polonium and Radium. They eventually won the Nobel Prize for Physics in 1903 for the discovery of radioactivity. When Pierre died in 1906, Marie honored his memory by continuing their work. In 1911, Marie Curie won another Nobel Prize, this time for chemistry. She was the first person to win the Nobel Prize twice.
Anita and Giuseppe Garibaldi (1839–1849)

Giuseppe Garibaldi was a leader in the struggle for Italian unification and independence. When Garibaldi was exiled from Italy, he fled to South America, where he lived for 12 years and fought in another struggle for independence—this time for the independence of Uruguay from Argentina.

While in Brazil, Garibaldi married Anita Ribeiro, a young woman from Laguna, a small town in Southern Brazil. As husband and wife, the two traveled everywhere together. It was known that Anita even accompanied her husband to battles.

However, on August 4, 1849, Anita, pregnant and sick, died in Garibaldi’s arms.

Garibaldi never did get over his grief at Anita’s death. Over a decade later, he was still grieving, when he first went to meet the king of a unified Italy, wearing one of her scarves.

4 Conversation

Badr: I’m really excited that we’re going to share an apartment to save money while we study in New York.

Adnan: I am, too. But, you know, a lot of friends end up arguing about chores. So, I was thinking it might be a good idea for us to divide up the chores before we move in.

Badr: Yeah. I do think we should discuss that. I’m sure we can work out a fair division of chores.

Adnan: Of course, we’ll each clean our own room. And since there are two bathrooms, how about if I clean one and you clean the other?

Badr: That’s fair. And each week we can take turns cleaning the rest of the apartment.

Adnan: Hey, do you want to do our laundry together so that only one of us has to go to the laundromat each week?

Badr: We’re on the same wavelength. I was just going to suggest that.

Adnan: I really don’t like folding the wash. If I wash the laundry, would you be willing to do the folding?

Badr: No sweat. And how about cooking? I don’t mind cleaning, but cooking is really not my cup of tea. Would you do the cooking if I did the cleaning up?

Adnan: Sorry, but if there’s one chore I hate, it’s cooking.

Badr: Well, it looks like we’re going to be eating a lot of takeout!

About the Conversation

1. What problem are Badr and Adnan trying to avoid?
2. How do Badr and Adnan divide up the chores?
3. What chore does neither of them want to do? What solution does Badr offer?

Your Turn

B. Check your answers with a partner. If you do not understand the meaning of a word, look it up in a dictionary.
Before Reading

Do you think animals ever form partnerships to help one another? Explain.

ANIMAL PARTNERS

For animals in the wild, each day is a struggle to survive. They must continually search for food, while at the same time keeping themselves safe from predators. Some animals have learned that teaming up with another animal makes the struggle to find food, shelter, and safety a bit easier. This kind of special relationship in which animals depend upon and benefit from one another is called symbiosis.

One of the most visually surprising examples of symbiosis occurs between the fearsome African crocodile and the small plover bird. When a plover is nearby, a crocodile will open its long, sharp-toothed jaws to invite it inside. You might assume that the plover would quickly reject this invitation and fly off. Yet surprisingly, the plover does hop inside. Perhaps even more amazingly, the crocodile, normally known for its aggression, does not snap its mouth shut and have the plover for a snack. Instead, it remains still, not closing its mouth until the plover leaves. How can this strange behavior be explained? The answer is symbiosis. The plover picks out all the small pieces of meat stuck between the crocodile's teeth. In doing so, it cleans the crocodile's teeth, which prevents it from getting infections. Because the crocodile cannot clean its own teeth, it depends on the plover to perform this service. In return, the crocodile provides an easy meal for the plover.

In some cases of symbiosis, like the crocodile and the plover, each animal in the pair benefits from their relationship in a different way. However, in other cases, the animals share a common goal. This is true of the honeyguide bird and the ratel, a furry creature with short legs and long claws. Both these animals live on grasslands in Africa and have an appetite for honey. As its name suggests, the honeyguide has a special ability for locating beehives. However, this small bird cannot open a beehive to get at the honey. To accomplish this, it teams up with the ratel. Ratels are a perfect match for the honeyguide as they love honey, are large enough to crack open a hive, but have no ability to find hives themselves. The honeyguide flies over grasslands looking for a hive. When it does spot a hive, it swoops down and makes a noise to alert the ratel. The ratel uses its claws to tear open the hive. After eating its fill, the ratel invites the honeyguide to finish the leftovers.

Another two animals that team up to compensate for their own weaknesses are the zebra and the ostrich. These two animals often travel together. This is no surprise since they are a perfect match. While the giant, flightless ostrich has poor senses of both smell and hearing, the zebra has acute senses of smell and hearing. On the other hand, the zebra has terrible eyesight, while the ostrich has excellent eyesight, enhanced by its long neck which enables the ostrich to see far into the distance. In this way, each makes up for the other's deficiencies. As a result, the animals are far safer together than they would be apart. Ostriches can see predators, such as lions, far in the distance, while zebras can smell or hear others as they approach.

Birds and land animals aren't the only ones that work in symbiotic pairs. Some sea animals, like the clownfish and the sea anemone, do as well. Sea anemones, which look like plants, are actually dangerous animals with poisonous

There is a memory that always makes me smile with contentment and admiration, and that is the memory of my maternal grandparents. My grandfather was a dedicated lawyer whose moral fiber prevented him from taking advantage of circumstances to make a profit! He was highly respected in Turkish courts and had the reputation of being the most honest law specialist. He was genuinely interested in people, history, law, and philosophy and was always reading when he was at home. He was the calmest, most serene person I have ever met. He never raised his voice, never lost his temper, and had a special ability to always rationalize things ever so smoothly that the worst calamity seemed like a slight twitch. Nothing could make him lose his sense and aura of peace.

Grandmother, on the other hand, was the exact opposite. She used to get all worked up about things and flustered over minor irregularities. She had to have everything planned just so and still worried about things that could go wrong. She wanted everything to be perfect, sometimes to an extreme. Once, when she had gotten into her cleanliness frenzy, she called someone in and got rid of genuine antique furniture that grandfather had painstakingly collected over a number of years and arranged in this perfect replica of a drawing room. There were fine, elegant chairs with brocade upholstery on the seats and beautiful tables, not to mention some exquisite mirrors. Grandmother had gotten it into her head that it was all useless because it collected too much dust and decided to sell it off to the first bidder for next to nothing.

When grandfather came home, he opened the door to the little drawing room to admire his creation and found an empty shell. He asked grandmother where everything was, and she very naturally informed him that she’d gotten rid of it because it was a dust magnet. All he did was chuckle, and then sat down at the table to have his lunch!

This incident pretty much rounds up the amazing symbiosis between these two wonderful people. In spite of their different characteristics, they obviously complemented each other in a way that only they could fully appreciate!

When you write a descriptive essay about people’s qualities/characteristics:

- think about their positive and negative qualities, their needs and the things they offer, their attitude to life, typical incidents, etc.
- express your personal feelings/views about the people.
- do not simply write a list of adjectives.
- vary the way you express thoughts, memories, and feelings; use expressions like these: I think he/she is..., I have always felt that..., I regard him/her as..., He/She seems to..., He/She tends to..., Anytime I think of..., I have never..., He/She is the most (adjective) person I have ever known/met, etc.
- use linking devices that indicate similarity and contrast, cause and effect, consequence, reason, etc.; use a variety of expressions and words like these: due to this..., although..., in spite of..., while..., compared to..., because of..., as a result, both, etc.
- plan your essay carefully by deciding what/who you are going to focus on in different sections/paragraphs.
- write a first draft, then read it and make corrections or write questions about things you are not sure about.
- hand over the draft to someone else to read and edit; encourage him/her to write comments and questions.
- read the comments and edit your essay.

4 Conversation

Ahmed: My parents gave me SR 30,000 for graduation.
Ibrahim: Wow! What are you going to do with all that cash?
Ahmed: I don’t know. I’m going around in circles about it, driving myself and everyone else crazy. At first I was going to do something really indulgent with it, like take a vacation. I was ready to book it, but then I got cold feet.
Ahmed: That’s true. But, on the other hand, I don’t want to spend all that money on something that will be over in a week. So, then I was thinking of buying something useful, like a used car.
Ibrahim: That’s a good idea.
Ahmed: Yeah. It would be a great convenience to have a car. But, at the same time, I’m used to taking public transportation, and I really don’t mind it. Frankly, I can’t think of anything that I really need. So maybe I should put the money aside for a rainy day.
Ibrahim: Well, yes, I suppose the alternative would be to just put it in the bank until you need it.
Ahmed: Right. But then again, what’s the point of having money if you’re not enjoying it? Maybe I should do something indulgent with it—like take that vacation.
Ibrahim: Now I see how you’re driving everyone crazy!

Sheikh Sulaiman bin Abdul-Aziz Al-Rajhi, the world-renowned philanthropist and winner of the 2012 King Faisal International Prize for Service to Islam, has not always been a billionaire.

Born in 1920, he spent his youth in Al-Qassim where he and his brother Saleh began their business, changing money for pilgrims, on their way to the cities of Makkah and Madinah.

Their business expanded in the 1970s during the oil boom in Saudi Arabia. The Al-Rajhi brothers helped migrant workers from Indonesia, Pakistan and other places to send their earnings home. They were granted permission to establish a bank, the Al Rajhi Bank, which complied with religious tenets such as a ban on interest.

Founding the bank, which is now the world’s biggest Islamic lender, was not hurdle-free. Sulaiman Al-Rajhi began by opening an office in Britain, to introduce the Islamic banking system on a more international basis. However, his initial attempts to secure a banking license were unsuccessful, as British officials were not aware of the principles and requirements of Islamic banking. He had to travel to different countries in order to explain to bankers that interest was forbidden by Islam and regarded as unacceptable by pious people all over the world. He pointed out that interest caused a lot of people to avoid transactions with banks, and to keep their cash and valuables at home. Eventually, the banking system he proposed was launched in Saudi Arabia and subsequently implemented in the United Kingdom.

Sheikh Sulaiman bin Abdul-Aziz Al-Rajhi is also chairman of the National Agricultural Development Company and founder of the Al-Watania agricultural projects, which include the largest poultry farm in the Middle East and one of the most successful companies in Saudi Arabia. Al Rajhi had visited a poultry farm abroad and had been shocked by the improper way chickens were fed and slaughtered. This prompted him to launch the poultry farm project, making sure that chickens were naturally fed and halal slaughtered according to Islamic tenets. He has also introduced and supported organic farming throughout the Middle East, intent on securing healthy food for all as a means of fostering good health, preventing illness and consequently reducing the cost of medical treatment. The Al-Rajhi projects diversified into other areas, as well, such as real estate and other investment projects.

In 2009, Sulaiman Al-Rajhi established the Sulaiman Al-Rajhi University, a non-profit research university with three departments; Medicine, Nursing and Applied Science. In fact, the university was established by the Suleiman Al-Rajhi Charitable Foundation (SAAR), which is considered the largest foundation of its kind in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, in terms of capital as well as range and volume of activities. SAAR now owns and controls more than half of Sulaiman Al-Rajhi’s wealth. The foundation organizes and oversees a substantial number of charities and humanitarian activities worldwide.
In May 2011, Sulaiman Al-Rajhi announced that he was donating most of his $7.7 billion fortune to charity. It is not uncommon for people in the Islamic world, to set aside one third or one fourth of their wealth for endowment, effective after death. In Sulaiman Al-Rajhi’s case, however, this was implemented during his lifetime. He distributed the rest of his wealth to his children in order to avoid potential disputes over inheritance, that could destroy kinship and harmony among them.

Sulaiman Al-Rajhi was awarded the highly prestigious King Faisal International Prize for Service to Islam, in 2012, in recognition of his outstanding service to Islam, his role in the establishment of the world’s largest Islamic bank and his ongoing contribution to charities, and humanitarian projects’ fight against poverty.

Having experienced extreme poverty earlier in life, he chose to donate and distribute all his assets, becoming poor once again but gaining peace of mind and inner happiness. Despite his advanced age, he enjoys a fully active life as he travels to various regions of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, managing the endowment project under his flagship, the SAAR Foundation.

The Internet had been used mainly by the Defense Department, the government, and academic researchers until as late as 1994. (6) As Jeff Bezos observed that Internet usage was increasing by 2,300% a year. He researched the top 20 mail order businesses and found that books were the only item for which no catalogue existed as it would be far too big to mail. He attended the American Bookseller’s Convention the very next day, (7) after one day he discovered that major wholesalers had already compiled electronic lists of their inventory. All he needed was a location on the Internet.

The new online company was set up in a two-bedroom house with a garage, in Seattle. On July 16, 1995, the site was opened to the world. (8) By September, it had weekly sales of $20,000. The business grew faster than anyone could have predicted.

(9) After the online bookselling business expanded to include an endless range of products from clothing to electronic goods to furniture and so on, skeptics thought it was growing too fast to be successful. (10) As it turned out, it was the smartest move anyone could have made that changed the face of commerce forever and turned several members of the Bezos family into billionaires.

Writing Corner

When you write a descriptive essay about a person’s life:

• distinguish the main life events from surrounding information.
• select key events that provide a complete picture of how someone’s life developed from the time they were born.
• list the events in chronological order, then switch them around if you wish, e.g. Having completed his studies, he proceeded to apply for any position that was advertised in his area of specialty.
• use connectors to show the order of events such as: when; then; after; while.
• be as descriptive as possible: Describe the person’s character, qualities and actions. Choose key events based on these qualities so that the reader has a clear picture of the person’s character as well as the person’s life story.

3 What Will They Think of Next?

1 Listen and Discuss

1. What things that we take for granted today did people not have 100 years ago?
2. Name a discovery or development that you think people will have (or use) 100 years from now.

In 1900, a popular American magazine, called Ladies’ Home Journal, published an article called “What May Happen in the Next Hundred Years,” making predictions about what life would be like in the year 2001. Read and discuss the predictions.

People
People will be taller by one to two inches. This increase in height will be a result of better health, due to improvements in medicine, sanitation, and diet. The average life expectancy will have risen from the current age of 35 to the age of 50.

Language
There will be no C, X, or Q in the English alphabet as these letters will have been determined to be unnecessary. Spelling by sound will have been adopted. English will have become a language of condensed words. English will also be more extensively spoken than any other language. Russian will rank second.

Transportation
Cars will be cheaper than horses are today. Automobiles will have been substituted for every horse vehicle now known. A one-pound motor in one of these vehicles will do the work of a pair of horses or more. There will be air-ships, but they will not successfully compete with cars and ships for passenger or freight traffic. They will be used mainly by the military.

Traffic
There will be no traffic on the streets of large cities. All traffic, including subways, cars, and buses will be either below ground or high above ground. “Moving-sidewalk” stairways will connect them to the street level. The vehicles on the busy underground and overhead streets will have cushioned wheels. Therefore, there will be almost no noise in cities.
Work with a partner to make predictions about the year 2100. Create one prediction for each of the categories in the article. Discuss your predictions with the class.

Media
Photographs will be telegraphed from any distance. If there is an important event happening halfway around the world, photographs of the event will be published in newspapers an hour later.

Deliveries
When people make purchases from stores, their purchases will be delivered by tubes, connected from the store to houses. These tubes will also collect, deliver, and transport mail over distances, perhaps for hundreds of miles.

Communication
Wireless telephone circuits will span the world. A person in New York will easily be able to call someone in China.

Quick Check
A. Vocabulary. Match each word to its definition.

1. _____ circuits  a. extend across
2. _____ condensed  b. shortened
3. _____ determined  c. covering a wide range or area
4. _____ extensively  d. position in an ordered group
5. _____ rank  e. paths for electrical currents
6. _____ span  f. decided

B. Comprehension. Answer the questions.

1. What was the average life expectancy in 1900?
2. What predictions did the author make about the English language?
   Have they come true?
3. What do you think the author was referring to when he used the term air-ships?
4. Choose a prediction and give an example of how it has come true.
5. Which prediction do you think is the least likely to ever come true? Why?
What Will They Think of Next?

Future Perfect
The future perfect is used to express the idea that an action will be completed in the future, before another event or before another specific time in the future. The future perfect is formed with will have + past participle.

By the time my children are grown, scientists will have found a solution to global warming.

The car company will have introduced their new models by November.

Future Perfect Progressive
The future perfect progressive is used to focus on the duration of an action that will be happening in the future before another time or event happens in the future. The future perfect progressive is formed with will have + been + present participle.

By the year 2020, people will have been flying for 117 years.

Note: Sometimes either the future perfect or the future perfect progressive can be used to express the same idea.

By 2020, I will have been living in Sao Paulo for 15 years.

By 2020, I will have lived in Sao Paulo for 15 years.

The Future with Dependent Time Clauses
We can talk about a future event using a time clause with when, before, after, while, until, and since. A present tense verb form (not a future form) is used in the time clause, and will or be going to are used in the main clause.

My father will keep using his old-fashioned cord phone until it breaks.

When he finishes working on his invention, he’s going to let me try it out.

A. Use the future perfect to combine the future events into one sentence, using by or by the time.

1st Event: I will take all my final exams. 2nd Event: The end of June will come.

By the end of June, I will have taken all my final exams.

1. 1st Event: It will start to rain. 2nd Event: We will arrive at the picnic.
2. 1st Event: I will fall asleep. 2nd Event: This DVD film will be over.
3. 1st Event: I will get married and have children. 2nd Event: 2020 will come.
4. 1st Event: My father will work at his company for 20 years. 2nd Event: He will retire.
5. 1st Event: He will decide which college to attend. 2nd Event: February will come.
6. 1st Event: The food will get cold. 2nd Event: You will come to the table.
7. 1st Event: He will learn to drive. 2nd Event: He will graduate.
B. Use the future perfect or the future perfect progressive to complete each sentence. In some cases, both forms are possible.

Sheri started studying biology in 2013. By 2017, she will have been studying biology for four years.

2. My brother became a vegetarian three weeks ago. By next week, ____________________________.
3. Jasim started his new job in February. By November, ________________________________________.
4. You started studying at 4:00. By 8:00, ____________________________________________________.
5. I've already lost five kilograms on my diet. If I lose another two, ____________________________.
7. We started waiting 20 minutes ago. If she gets here in 10 minutes, _________________________.
8. This TV show started two-and-a-half hours ago! In another half hour, ________________________.

C. Put the verbs in parentheses in either the future tense (will or be going to) or the present tense.

I’ll call (call) you as soon as I _______ (get) home.

1. The company _______ (manufacture) the parts when they _______ (receive) the order.
2. After I _______ (make) a million dollars, I _______ (buy) my parents a house.
3. I _______ (travel) the world before I _______ (get) married and settle down.
4. He _______ (run) to the store before it _______ (start) raining.
5. When you _______ (drive) down the road, you _______ (see) a large, red building.
6. ___________________ you _______ (argue) with me until I _______ (change) my mind?

D. Look at the pictures. Then complete the paragraph about how life will be different in the year 2050. Use the future perfect, future perfect progressive, and the future with dependent time clauses.

While some things will have stayed the same for the average family in 2050, some things will have changed dramatically...
Conversation

Edward: Grandma, you’ve been lugging that book around all weekend.

Grandma: If I want to read it, what choice do I have?

Grandma: A what?

Edward: An electronic book reader. They’re these great little devices that let you read books electronically. So, you read on screen instead of on paper.

Grandma: But I like reading on paper.

Edward: Trust me, Grandma. In a few years, no one is going to be reading books printed on paper anymore. Paper books will have disappeared.

Grandma: I don’t like all this new technology. I’m happy with things the way they are.

Edward: You really should check out e-book readers. One of the advantages is that you can buy, download, and start reading a book in minutes. Another great thing about it is that you can carry hundreds of books with you without it being heavy.

Grandma: Why would I want to carry hundreds of books around with me?

Edward: Grandma, I’m sure if you just gave it a try, you’d find that you actually prefer it. Why not go with the flow?

Grandma: I think this is all just a lot of hoopla. I’ve been reading my books on paper for 68 years, and I’m not about to change that now.

About the Conversation

1. What does Edward want Grandma to try?
2. What arguments does he make?
3. Is Edward successful in persuading Grandma? Why or why not?

What Will They Think of Next?

Things that once seemed impossible often become commonplace with the passing of time. There are people predicting that this will happen with space tourism in the next decade or two. Some are even investing in and developing space tourism technology, believing that space tourism will be the next big thing. They imagine a future in which space travel will have become a reality for millions of ordinary people.

At the moment, space tourism is only a possibility for the incredibly wealthy. In 2001, American multi-millionaire Dennis Tito paid $20 million to become the first space tourist. After eight months of rigorous training, Tito traveled aboard a Russian capsule that was launched by an American company called ‘Space Adventures.’

He then spent seven days aboard the International Space Station. Since then, a number of other millionaire space tourists of different nationalities have gone into space.

Although up to now only very wealthy people have had the opportunity to be space tourists, many see this as the beginning of what will eventually become a lucrative new industry. There are several companies that have already invested millions of dollars in developing new, reusable launch vehicles. Their goal is to lower launch costs enough to make it possible for the average person to buy a ticket to space. The Japanese Rocket Society, for example, has set a target price of one million yen (about $10,000).

Virgin Galactic, a British company owned by Richard Branson’s Virgin Group, has been working on plans for sending people into space for years. The company is about to begin testing of their eight-seat spacecraft, and expects that they will have worked out any problems by 2020. When the spacecraft is shown to be safe, Virgin Galactic will begin their flights. Although tickets are a steep £100,000 ($160,000), amazingly, the first year of flights has already been booked. One of these future passengers is Lisa Ramirez, a mother of three. When asked why she was prepared to spend so much money on a Galactic flight, Ramirez explained, “I’m 58 years old, and by the time this happens, I will have been dreaming of going to space for at least 45 years!”

There are even companies working on plans to build hotels for space tourists. The Shimizu Corporation, a giant Japanese construction company, has detailed plans for a hotel they expect to complete by 2020. They believe that by then they will have created a 63-room hotel which will orbit 279 miles (450 kilometers) above the surface of Earth. The hotel will slowly spin in order to produce enough force to simulate Earth’s gravity. It is estimated that such a space hotel would cost 6 to 12 billion dollars, and would take about six years to build.

Since water was discovered on the moon in 1998, the multi-national hotel chain, Hilton Hotels, has been working on plans for a hotel on the moon. The plans call for a 5,000-room complex with a beach, a working farm, a medical center, and even a school. Two huge solar panels will generate the power. Hilton is working on this project with experts at NASA.
You may wonder what space tourists will do while in space. To begin with, most will probably want to spend some time simply enjoying the incredible sight of Earth from space. After that, no doubt they will spend some time gazing at the amazingly bright stars, and will take a space walk or two. When space tourists have had their fill of observing, they are likely to spend hours amusing themselves floating and doing acrobatics in the zero gravity of space. This zero gravity could provide endless recreational opportunities, including swimming in a zero gravity swimming pool in which people move through a floating mass of water.

With so much research, energy, and money being poured into space tourism, it is clear that it is a matter of when, rather than if, space tourism will become a reality.

After Reading

Answer true or false. Rewrite the false statements to make them true.

1. __________ The first tourist in space paid two million dollars.
2. __________ Virgin Galactic is struggling to book its first year of flights.
3. __________ A Japanese construction company has plans to build a hotel in space.
4. __________ The entire hotel will experience zero gravity.
5. __________ The Hilton Hotel chain plans to power a moon hotel with wind power.
6. __________ Hilton Hotels is working on the moon hotel with NASA.

9 Speaking

1. Work in groups/pairs. Think about space tourism in the future. Do you think it will happen? Why? Why not?
2. What do you think some of the advantages and disadvantages will be?
3. Think about transportation, accommodation, cost, and advertising.
4. Make notes in the chart and use them to help you present your opinion and discuss in class.

|                             | Space tourism will/will not happen.
Reasons:                |            |
Cities will have expanded beyond conceivable limits and space will be restricted to a minimum. Land will be used to grow fuel crops rather than food and this will increase food shortages. Industry as we know it will have changed to accommodate new recycling systems that will optimize available materials to an extreme and save natural resources. Conventional vehicles will have become obsolete. New small vehicles and tele-transportation will have been introduced. Conventional shopping will be restricted to a few large, dome-shaped malls with moving aisles and stairs. Most trade will be carried out electronically. E-commerce will be the bulk of trade. Most homes will have gone off the grid and will be making optimal use of renewable sources of energy. Each home will have been furnished with a hanging vegetable patch to grow fresh food. Buildings will have been fitted with special tanks to collect rain water that will then be processed and filtered to make it safe for use. Gray water from households will be collected, processed, and used to water crops and clean external areas. Foundations for special biospheres will have been laid. Some will be placed around existing building complexes that satisfy safety and environmental requirements and others located outside the perimeter of towns or neighborhoods marked for demolition. All inhabited areas will have been fitted with a special shield to protect them from harmful radiation. National heritage sites and densely populated wildlife habitats will also be protected with special shields when required. English will have developed into a different international variety shared by all on a global basis. Special, zero gravity hospitals will have been constructed and placed in orbit above the earth. Regular shuttle or tube transportation will have been installed for patients, visitors, and staff. People will have developed a common conscience as citizens of the Earth and will be committed to maintaining as much of its remaining biodiversity as possible.

5. Read the text again and highlight future forms. Which form(s) are used more? Why?
6. Choose the sections that you disagree with. Maintain the structure and make changes to express your ideas/vision. Exchange texts and compare.
By 2030, I believe that technology will have completely changed the way we learn. Instead of going to school, we will be able to stay home and learn with the use of computers. One way we will do this is to use an educational robot. This is a robot which goes to school in our place. We will use the robot to communicate remotely with our teacher and our classmates ...

Writing Corner

When you write a personal essay which expresses your views:

- make notes before you start writing to plan what you want to say.

- include a conclusion to sum up your views or opinions. Don’t include any new information in the conclusion.
- be creative but focused on the topic.
- you don’t have to be objective.
- address your audience directly.
- use “I” narration, as in “I think” or “I feel.”
- include examples, personal anecdotes, thoughts, interpretations, or ideas.
- try to get your point across as clearly as possible.
- do not repeat yourself.

EXTRACT 1
Are humans the only intelligent life in the universe? Or, are we just one of many advanced civilizations out there? While people used to assume we were alone in the universe, we now know that the galaxy contains over 100 billion stars. This fact has led many scientists to think it unlikely that we are the only intelligent life form in the universe. Some of these scientists have devoted themselves to searching for other civilizations. This search is commonly referred to as the Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence, or SETI. Since the SETI program began in 1959, scientists have been scanning the sky for signals sent by another, alien civilization. To do this, they use the world’s largest radio telescope which is located in Arecibo, Puerto Rico. The Arecibo telescope is 1,000 feet (305 meters) in diameter. This telescope is so large, it is said that it could hold 10 billion bowls of cornflakes! The telescope collects and sends data to SETI computers 24 hours a day.

2. Research and collect information about constructions or other projects. Talk to people who live in the area. This type of information will give you ideas about the kinds of development(changes) that will probably take place.

3. Use the chart to make notes about the information and your ideas.

4. Think of how the area will have changed by 2030 or 2040.

5. Select and print out pictures or draw if possible.

2 Reading

Before Reading
1. Do you think there is life on other planets?
2. If there were life on other planets, how could we find this out?

Are humans the only intelligent life in the universe? Or, are we just one of many advanced civilizations out there? While people used to assume we were alone in the universe, we now know that the galaxy contains over 100 billion stars. This fact has led many scientists to think it unlikely that we are the only intelligent life form in the universe. Some of these scientists have devoted themselves to searching for other civilizations. This search is commonly referred to as the Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence, or SETI.

Since the SETI program began in 1959, scientists have been scanning the sky for signals sent by another, alien civilization. To do this, they use the world’s largest radio telescope which is located in Arecibo, Puerto Rico. The Arecibo telescope is 1,000 feet (305 meters) in diameter. This telescope is so large, it is said that it could hold 10 billion bowls of cornflakes! The telescope collects and sends data to SETI computers 24 hours a day.

Many people don’t realize that in addition to searching for radio waves, we humans are sending them out into space as well. This is because all of the radio and television signals that come into our homes also travel into space. We have been constantly and unintentionally leaking radio waves into space for over sixty years now. One day these signals may be detected by an alien civilization. In fact, it is possible that aliens are already listening to Who Wants to Be a Millionaire?, CSI, and The Simpsons!

Although SETI has found some unexplained signals, there have not been any clear, confirmed extraterrestrial signals yet. However, SETI scientists are not at all discouraged. They know that the universe is vast, and searching the entire sky for a distant signal is like searching for a needle in a haystack.

Not only are SETI scientists not discouraged, they are actually more optimistic than ever before. They do feel that in another 50 or 100 years, they will have succeeded in detecting alien signals. What is the reason for this confidence? Previous searches were limited by the shortcomings of available technology. For example, while there are hundreds of billions of stars in our galaxy, fewer than a thousand have been monitored for alien signals. But technology is improving all the time. As technology improves, scientists are going to have a better chance of picking up alien signals. In the next few decades, hundreds of thousands of stars, maybe even millions, will have been monitored.
Dan Wertheimer, a SETI researcher at the University of California in Berkeley, says, "We're making incredible progress. The more computing power you have, the better job you can do looking for these signals. Capabilities have been doubling every year." One reason SETI's computing power has been increasing is a volunteer program started in 1999 called SETI@home, in which the computers of ordinary people around the world are used to analyze SETI data.

Through the SETI@home program, volunteers download a special SETI screensaver to their home computer. When the computers are not in use and go into screensaver mode, the computers begin to analyze data gathered by the Arecibo radio telescope. The home computers search through the data for any signals that may have been created by an alien civilization. There are currently over 5 million volunteers in 225 countries participating in this program. Wertheimer says, "If you're the lucky one that finds that distant signal, then you might get the Nobel Prize, but you'll have to share it with 2 million people around the world who are helping us analyze that data."

Some people find it hard to believe that perhaps one day we will be communicating with aliens from distant planets. But others feel differently. Eighty-six-year-old Daniel Jackman says, "When I was a young man, if you had told me that one day we were going to send people into space, I would've told you that you were crazy. Now I know better. Just because we're used to certain limitations doesn't mean we can't go beyond them."

We may well learn one day that we are not alone in the universe. In the meantime, when sitting on your couch, watching your favorite TV program, consider that an alien civilization may be listening to it with you!

Developing Your Writing: Prewriting Techniques

Prewriting is an important first step in the writing process. Prewriting helps you explore and gather your ideas before you begin organizing and writing your essay. These are some of the most common types of prewriting techniques:

Freewriting: Freewriting involves taking the time (usually about five minutes) to write down all of the ideas you have about your topic before you begin researching or organizing the topic. When you freewrite, do not worry about using correct spelling, grammar, or punctuation, or even writing in complete sentences.

Brainstorming: Like freewriting, the purpose of brainstorming is to capture all of the ideas you have on a topic before you begin writing about it. However, when you brainstorm you only write words or phrases related to your topic.

Questioning: Ask the journalist’s five W’s—Who? What? When? Where? Why?—about the topic. List as many questions as you can about the topic. This will help you start thinking about questions to research and answer in your essay.

The Past, Present, and Future of the Telephone

Telephones are something we all take for granted. We are so used to having them that it is hard to imagine that they were only invented a little over 100 years ago. Just think, at the beginning of the twentieth century there were fewer than four million phones in the world. And if you wanted to speak with another person over the phone, you would need an operator to make the connection between you and the other person. Telephone technology has changed a lot over the last 100 years, and I believe in just another ten or twenty years it will have changed radically from what it is today…

Adel: That was such a fantastic basketball game on TV.
Fahd: You must be joking.
Adel: Why? Didn’t you like it.
Fahd: I thought it was a terrible game. The whole thing was just awful.
Adel: What didn’t you like about it?
Fahd: For one thing, the Bulls’ key player missed every easy shot. It really bothered me throughout the entire game.
Adel: Well, you’re right about that. But what else didn’t you like?
Fahd: I thought their uniforms were ridiculous. I found the whole idea of the Bulls’ players wearing cowhide tops hard to swallow.
Adel: I don’t agree at all. The whole idea is to stand out in the game. The tops are not real cowhide. It’s fake cowhide.
Fahd: I’m not sure they were fake. Think of all the poor animals they took the hides from. They must believe that the poor animals are a dime a dozen. Anyway, by the end of the game, I started to doze off.
Adel: We seem to have very different tastes in basketball and uniforms. Maybe next time we get together we should just go out to a restaurant.
Fahd: I couldn’t agree more.

Detective stories have always been a favorite in literature, and now they are one of the most popular genres in TV films and series. There is something appealing about the mystery and intrigue that captivates viewers and keeps them in suspense until the case is finally solved.

But what accounts for the phenomenal success and enduring popularity of detective stories? Is it the charismatic and fearless hero and his uncanny ability to uncover the truth? Is it the action and adventure—the high-speed chases, danger, and exotic settings? Is it the psychological wit and hi-tech gadgets that the detective has at his disposal? Or is it the simple fact that the viewer knows the hero will triumph over the villain in the end?

Clearly, the TV audience enjoys the mystery and non-stop suspense of detective films. However, ironically, there is also predictability to the story that is tremendously appealing. Certain elements and sequences of events appear over and over in detective stories and are eagerly awaited by fans. TV films and series with such predictable elements are known as formula films. The TV audience knows the plot will be puzzling and sometimes have unexpected results. They know the hero will confront dangerous villains. They know there will be complicated steps involved in piecing together all the clues, and they are challenged to try to figure out the mystery before the detective.

The most basic element in the formula of a detective story is the hero—the detective. This is the character the viewer identifies with throughout the film. He is usually a courageous individual with superior intelligence. He is often charming and outgoing, which helps him socialize with others, while, in fact, he is collecting information from witnesses and gathering evidence for his case. Another type of hero is the gruff and serious detective, who rarely smiles, but is very efficient at his job. In contrast, the hero in detective comedies is a naïve and clumsy character who accidentally stumbles across clues to eventually solve the crime.

Of course, the villain also plays a crucial role in the story. On occasion, the villain’s identity is a mystery and is only revealed at the end, but more often he is introduced to the TV audience. Just as there are formulaic types of heroes, there are stereotypical villains: cold-blooded, greedy criminals, evil geniuses, and mad scientists. Most villains also have physical or psychological defects that add to the ugliness of their character, such as a scarred face, a missing limb, or a split personality.

The detective is challenged to find the villain by following clues. To assist him, he uses special talents in intellectual reasoning or has help from technological devices. These range from a simple magnifying glass to sophisticated DNA analysis and electronic tracking devices. Some detectives even use high-tech gadgets that are disguised as everyday objects, such as an explosive pen, a laser watch, or a computerized, talking vehicle!

When the hero confronts the villain, there are always scenes of action and danger. These involve high-speed chases on any kind of vehicle imaginable—cars, motorcycles, helicopters, speed boats, skis, submarines, camels, or simply on foot.
If the detective is captured, he finds himself in life-threatening situations and must use his skills to escape. He is then even more determined to catch the villain.

One way or another, the detective always accomplishes his mission, much to the satisfaction of the audience. The formula for detective stories is so successful; it is hard to imagine that it will ever be significantly altered. After all, who wants to watch a detective story without action and adventure, or in which the villain wins?

Film genres are categories of films based on theme, setting, plots/stories, characters, and other specific features such as special effects, computer enhancement, animation, etc. There are major genres and subgenres. For example, adventure and action films are quite well-known and associated with popular heroes such as Superman or the Rambo sequels.

It is not always easy to classify films as they often combine elements of different genres. Kung Fu Panda, for instance, is an animated film which can also be categorized as an action film. This is the reason why some films are listed in different categories or a category that is more popular at a given time.

Film genres evolve through time. Action films featuring martial arts specialists and superhuman heroes used to be very popular over a decade ago. They still exist, but they seem to have lost their initial appeal. If a film includes action and is filmed in tropical settings, is it an action film or an adventure film? Would you say that Toy Story belongs to animation as a genre or comedy? Is it more of one or the other? And if so, which?

Detective films are developed around stories of criminal actions and include elements of mystery and suspense. Dramas, on the other hand, are serious films, portaying realistic life situations, character development, and interaction. They include a number of subcategories, e.g. melodramas, biographies, or “biopics.” Epics are usually costume dramas, historical dramas, or war dramas in extravagant settings with lavish costumes. They are sometimes a more spectacular version of a biopic film, such as The Last Emperor.

Horror films are designed and produced to frighten audiences. They are sometimes combined with science fiction when, for example, Earth is invaded by an alien monster. Science fiction films, on the other hand, are often visionary, with futuristic technology and extraordinary creatures from outer space. One of the most famous examples of this genre is E.T.

War films portray the horror and destruction of war and are often combined with documentary excerpts. They are also paired with other genres depending on the story, e.g. action, adventure, drama, comedy, etc. Finally, Westerns represent one of the oldest genres with easily recognizable plots, elements, and characters, including horses, dusty towns, Indians and cowboys, good and bad guys, a sheriff and deputies, etc. In other words, they follow a common formula which has been modified, developed, expanded, supplemented, and revisited over the years.

If you look up film genres in different sources, you will find that they share some categories but not others. Once again, this is quite natural, given the evolutionary nature of film genres and changing trends in popularity that reflect overall social and financial trends.
B. 1. Think of a TV film genre that uses a formula (e.g. action, adventure, comedy, Western). Choose a particular TV film in this genre as an example.
   2. Think about the different parts of the formula. Use a diagram to make notes.
   3. Write an expository essay in which you reveal and explain the formula behind the film.

The Lion King is a coming-of-age film. Coming-of-age films focus on a young person’s journey to adulthood, often both emotionally and physically. In these kinds of films there is usually a role model who helps teach the main character, and there is usually a test that the character must undergo. The Lion King is a good example of this kind of film because…

Writing Corner

When you write an expository essay:
- choose a specific area of a topic to focus on.
- think about your audience or readers.
- research and collect information from different sources.
- think of examples and comments made by others.
- you can use quotes, exchanges, and arguments from your sources.
- if necessary, you can present the information in three main sections:
  a. an introduction and thesis statement
  b. a longer paragraph or a number of paragraphs presenting the information about different aspects or categories of the main topic
  c. a closing paragraph
- you are free to use different types of text, arguments, and material, including visuals.
11 Form, Meaning and Function

Comparative and Superlative Forms of Adjectives

The Comparative

Use more / less + adjective, or adjective + -er to make the comparative.

- Detective stories are more/less popular than stories about space travel.
- Goldfish are smaller than clownfish.

Use words such as: a little, slightly, much, a lot, considerably, definitely, and certainly to express how much something differs, or to add emphasis.

- Children’s TV films are considerably better than they used to be.

Use as + adjective + as to compare things that are equal or similar.

- Finding Nemo is as good as Toy Story.

Use not as + adjective + as to compare things that are different.

- Finding Nemo and Toy Story are good TV films but not as good as The Lion King.

Use the + comparative, the + comparative to describe two actions. The second action happens as a result of the first.

- The more I hear about the Giza Pyramids, the more I want to know.
- The harder he works at speaking English, the better he becomes.

The Superlative

Use the + adjective + -est or the most/least + adjective to make the superlative.

- The Nobel prize is the most prestigious award a scientist can win.
- The company director agreed that it was the least attractive offer, but he was obliged to take it.

We can use the expression by far to add emphasis.

- The Lion King is by far the best TV film of all.

A. Write sentences about the animals using comparative and superlative structures.

| camel • cat • cheetah • donkey • eagle • elephant • goldfish • horse • ostrich • snake • tiger • lion |

1. Both cheetahs and tigers are big cats.
   - Lions are the biggest of the cats.
   - The biggest tigers are as big as lions.
   - Cheetahs are a lot smaller and more slender in comparison.
   - The cheetah is by far the fastest land animal on Earth.

   1. cheetah/tiger/lion
   2. camel/donkey/horse/elephant
   3. ostrich/eagle
   4. bear/snake
   5. Your own idea

B. Imagine you are a contestant on a TV Quiz show. Work with a partner. Ask and answer the questions.

1. What’s the most widely spoken language?
2. What’s the tallest mountain?
3. What’s the largest desert?
4. What’s the deepest ocean?
5. What’s the most populated city?
6. What’s the largest lake (by size)?
7. What’s the hottest place?
8. What’s the driest place?
C. Use the chart above to find information about the planets. Choose the correct word to make true facts about our solar system.

Some planets are much bigger and farther away from the sun than others. Jupiter is by far the (1. biggest / hottest) and Mercury is the (2. smallest / coldest) in our solar system. Mars is (3. closer / farther) from the sun than Earth. Mercury is the (4. closest/ farthest) planet to the sun. It is so (5. close / far) to the sun that if you stood on the surface of the planet, the sun would appear at least three times (6. larger / smaller) than it does on Earth.

Mercury, Venus, Earth and Mars are all rocky planets, but Earth is the only one that is (7. inhabitable / uninhabitable), which means that people, animals and plants live on it. Venus is only (8. slightly / almost) smaller than Earth and has many high mountains and volcanoes. Venus is so (9. close / far) to the sun that the land is (10. hotter / colder) than boiling water. Mars is a (11. rocky / icy) planet and is known as the Red Planet because of the red color of the planet’s surface. Mars is (12. almost/ considerably) half the size of Earth.

The four planets (13. farthest / closest) away from the sun are Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune. They are very (14. hot / cold) and (15. green / icy) places. Jupiter has the (16. least / most) number of known moons. Jupiter's four (17. largest/smallest) moons were observed in 1610 by an Italian astronomer called Galileo Galilei. Saturn has the (18. least / most) spectacular ring system of all the planets. There are 7 rings made up of dust, rocks and ice. (19. Most / More) than 40 spacecraft have explored Saturn, but only one has visited Uranus and Neptune. Neptune is the (20. farthest / closest) from the sun and makes a complete orbit around the sun in about 165 Earth years.

Adverb Clauses
An adverb clause is a dependent clause. It begins with an adverb and is always linked to an independent clause.

Because the shoes were on sale, I bought two pairs.
(adverb clause) (independent clause)
Don't buy that dress unless you really need it.
(independent clause) (adverb clause)

Note: When an adverb clause begins the sentence, use a comma to separate it from the independent clause. When the adverb clause is at the end, do not use a comma.

Because, because of, since, and now that begin adverb clauses that give information about reasons.

They closed the store early since there were no customers.

4 Conversation

Farah: Wow. Look at all those bags! I wouldn’t buy any more if I were you. I think you’re going to regret spending so much money today. You bought four sweaters, three dresses, and two pairs of shoes.

Amal: Actually, I bought three pairs of shoes. But don’t worry. I’m not buying another thing. I don’t think I could carry anything else. And anyway, after all this shopping, I’m officially broke.

Farah: Let’s go so that you’re not tempted to buy anything else. Hey, where are you going?

Amal: Look at this gorgeous sweater!

Farah: Amal! Didn’t you just say you weren’t going to buy another thing?

Amal: Yeah, but now I’m not so sure. I hardly have any red sweaters, and this one is adorable.

Farah: I thought you were broke. I would just walk away from it if I were you.

Amal: Well, I do have my credit card.

Farah: I don’t think using your credit card is a good idea. Think carefully about it before you blow more money on more clothes.

Amal: You’re right. I’d better not max out my credit card. OK. I’m going to show some self-control. If I stay here another minute or two, I’ll break down and buy it. So quick—let’s beat it.

Real Talk

broke = out of money
blow = waste money
max out = spend up to the limit
beat it = leave quickly

   b. design symbol of a business or product
   c. without planning

B. Check your answers with a partner. If you do not understand the meaning of a word, look it up in a dictionary.
For most people, it is virtually impossible to go through the day without seeing advertisements. From the time we wake up and flip on the TV or check our email, we are surrounded by advertisements. They are in magazines, on buses, on billboards, online, and on buildings, to name just a few of the places we see them throughout the day. According to a recent study, the average person is exposed to between 400 and 600 advertisements each day. This means that by the time we are 60, we will have been exposed to 40 to 50 million advertisements!

In the past, advertisements were usually designed to reach people in their homes through traditional approaches, like TV commercials and newspaper and magazine ads. However, people’s viewing habits have changed dramatically in the last couple of decades. These days, people are less likely to give one form of media their full attention. For example, even if someone is watching TV, they are also often using the Internet at the same time. Advertisers need the consumer’s attention in order to promote their products. But because getting this attention is harder than it used to be, advertisers have been forced to find new ways of reaching the consumer.

One unconventional place advertisements are popping up is in doctors’ offices. In some doctors’ offices, pharmaceutical companies advertise products on everything from boxes of tissues to the paper covering the exam table. Doctors get free products, and the advertisers get the consumers’, attention. Similarly, advertisements are becoming more common in schools. “Free” products such as book covers and educational posters are offered by companies so that the company can advertise on these materials. In the U.S., a company called Channel One broadcasts a ten-minute news program followed by two minutes of commercials each day in 350,000 schools. Because the schools show these news programs, the companies give them thousands of dollars worth of much needed audiovisual equipment.

Advertisers have found that one of the best ways to get consumer attention is to place ads in unusual places. So, ads are popping up in all kinds of unexpected places like pizza boxes, grocery carts, air sickness bags on airplanes, and even on pieces of food like bananas and apples. A television network recently imprinted its logo on 35 million eggs. They called the approach “egg-vertisements.”

One of the strangest developments in advertising has been people selling advertising space on themselves! This mini-trend began in 2005 when a man offered his face for advertising to the highest bidder on eBay. A pharmaceutical company won the spot, paying the man $37,375 to place a temporary sticker on his forehead to advertise one of their products. He may have been the first to offer such an unusual exchange, but he was not the last.
Perhaps the sneakiest form of advertising is called buzz marketing. This involves a company hiring people to create excitement about a product. In exchange for free products or money, these people pretend to talk about the product spontaneously in everyday settings to people they meet in their daily lives. Sometimes professional actors are even hired to pose as users of the product. If the technique is done correctly, the consumers do not even know that they were the target of buzz marketing. Lately, buzz marketing has been spreading to chat rooms, Internet forums, and blogs.

Wherever we go, advertisements seem to follow. Unless you’re reading this article on a desert island, there’s probably an advertisement close by. And there seems to be no limit to the lengths advertisers will go to in order to catch our attention. In the years ahead, we can expect advertisers to come up with even more creative, surprising, and outlandish forms of advertising in their ongoing efforts to grab our attention—and our wallets!

After Reading

1. How many advertisements is the average person exposed to each day?
2. What are traditional advertising approaches?
3. What does the author of the article consider to be one of the strangest developments in advertising?
4. What does the author consider to be the sneakiest form of advertising?

Speaking

1. Work in pairs/groups. Think about advertising that is used to address adults, teenagers, and young children in your country. Decide on 2-3 products and/or services for each age group. Which advertisements are more memorable, in your view?
2. Talk about the slogans, images, and methods/techniques used in these advertisements and make notes in the chart. Then use your notes to discuss your ideas in class.

   - What can specialists find out about someone through his or her handwriting?
   - Why is word-processing popular?
   - Which types of tests are mentioned? What is the difference between them?
   - What is the writer’s viewpoint on the issue? Do you agree or disagree? Why?

Is handwriting obsolete?

Handwriting involves forming letters with a writing implement. Proper handwriting, i.e. cursive writing, normally requires formal training that is still in place in some schools. Naturally, at initial literacy levels young learners are trained to manipulate a writing implement and develop their eye-hand coordination so they can form letters.

As learners get older, however, they are more reluctant to write. One of the reasons mentioned is the fact that most people word-process, making handwriting unnecessary. Even older adults that used to have a distinct handwriting style often claim to have lost the ability to write smoothly and evenly. So is handwriting obsolete? Should we forget about it?

Handwriting has been a very distinct identifying feature. It represents the writer in more ways than one. Graphologists analyze handwriting to determine character traits, gender, personality, and emotional state or to authenticate documents. Allowing it to truly become obsolete would remove an identity marker that has been regarded quite highly in historical and personal terms. Handwritten notes of prominent authors are coveted by collectors, who will often pay exorbitant amounts to possess them.

On the other hand, most of us will invariably use a computer when we write. It is fast and efficient, and it makes editing so much easier. You can delete, copy, paste, store versions of your work throughout stages of editing for later reference; you can spell-check and search for words or alternative expressions.

Compared to all these advantages, handwriting seems so restricting and restricted that most computer literate people limit it to scribbling notes for someone or filling in forms that are not available in electronic form.

Tests, you might argue, require handwriting. Some do and some are computer-based; it is true, however, that a substantial number of pen and paper tests require writing by hand within a set time limit. “Rusty” handwriting is likely to affect the final score.

Overall, there seems to be some resistance to the total and unbroken hegemony of the computer, indicating that people do not want to become totally reliant on it. They are keen to hang on to some of the more tangible aspects of literate life that can be manipulated and accessed without the help of a device, such as reading books or writing by hand.

In view of the above, we would have to consider a more inclusive standpoint that allows us to exploit technological advances, while maintaining the ability to write with a simple implement on a surface for someone to read. Being able to record ideas, information, and messages in a self-sufficient and independent manner allows us to control the action itself and continue being masters of our expression.

Dear Editor,

In response to last week’s article about the rights and wrongs of advertising in schools, I am writing to give you my opinion on why I think it is a positive thing.

First of all, having adverts in and around the school gives teachers the opportunity to teach students about the field of marketing and advertising ....

Moreover, ...

To sum up, ...

Writing Corner

When you write a letter to communicate your opinion and feelings on a controversial topic:

• start with an appropriate greeting: Dear Editor, Dear Sir or Madam, Dear Mr. Jones.
• state clearly the reason why you are writing and give your general opinion on the topic.
• state your reasons for your opinion by giving reasons and/or examples.
• organize your reasons into clear paragraphs. Each paragraph should start with a sentence which gives the main reason (topic sentence). The paragraph should then be developed in such a way that you support the topic sentence with more details and examples.
• use connectors to list your main reasons: Moreover, …; In addition, …; Additionally, …; What’s more, …; Last but not least, … and so on.
• to express your opinion, uses phrases such as: In my opinion, …; From my point of view, …; As far as I’m concerned, …; I strongly believe that, …
• ask yourself what objections your readers might have to your ideas and use phrases to express a general opinion such as: Most people think that …; Everyone knows that …; Most people support/oppose the idea…
• select features and benefits that you can present to overcome these objections.
• do not forget to write a conclusion carefully, going back to your initial thesis statement and summarizing your facts/arguments. Use phrases such as: To sum up, …; In conclusion, …; To conclude, … and so on.

Unless you study harder, you will fail the test.

D. Read the advertisements. Work with a partner and persuade him or her to buy the product. Use sentences with when, if and unless.

Sandy: I think women talk much more than men.
Amal: That’s just a stereotype. Though I do think women talk more than men about certain things.
Sandy: Like what?
Amal: Women like to talk about their feelings, but men usually don’t.
Sandy: Men’d rather talk about sports. Or cars.
Amal: Typical!

1. The common stereotype that women talk more than men is wrong. In fact, recent research shows that there is very little gender difference in how much people speak. Some research suggests that men tend to speak more than women in formal settings, and that women speak more in informal situations. One study revealed that women speak an average of about 16,000 words a day, and men do too.
2. Studies show that women worry more frequently than men. This may be due to the fact that women’s brains produce less of a brain chemical called COMT, which controls anxiety. Having less of this chemical can make it harder for a person to stop worrying.
3. Women lie frequently, and men do too. However, research shows that women and men tend to lie about different things. Women are more likely to lie in order to try not to hurt a person’s feelings. They are also more likely to lie to try to avoid a conflict. However, you are more likely to be told a lie by a man for a different reason. Men more often lie in order to make themselves seem more impressive.
4. Studies show that men have more restless temperaments than women. For example, women seem to have a capacity to adjust to repetitive tasks, but men don’t. They dislike being asked to do such tasks and are less likely to successfully complete them. It is speculated that women do better in these situations because they have a greater ability to keep their thoughts and imagination active, even during tedious activities.
5. Many people assume that since women have babies, and men don’t, women probably have a greater ability to deal with pain. However, the research seems to indicate that, due to their body chemistry, women actually have lower tolerance for pain. During recovery after surgery, women tend to experience pain with greater frequency and intensity than men do.

6. Women outlive men all around the world, sometimes by an average of as much as 10 years. For example, in the U.S., the average life expectancy is about 79 for women, but only 72 for men. The gap is largest among people who live to be 100 or older. Worldwide among people 100 or older, women outnumber men 9 to 1.

Answers:
1. False; 2. True; 3. False; 4. True; 5. False; 6. True

4 Conversation

Fahd: I don't know why the GPS can't find Lakeside Drive. I think we'd better stop and ask directions.

Faisal: Don't worry. I'm sure I can find it. Let's try going this way.

Fahd: I think we're lost. Look. There's a gas station. Let's pull over and ask someone.

Faisal: Oh, all right.

Attendant: You look lost.

Fahd: You can say that again. We're looking for Lakeside Drive.

Attendant: I know this town like the back of my hand, and I can tell you that there's no street by that name. Do you mean Riverside Drive?

Faisal: Oh, yeah! That must be it. I just got the street name wrong.

Fahd: Can you tell us how to get there?

Attendant: It's not far. It's just over on the other side of town. You need to turn left out of here. Then go straight for a couple of miles. Keep going until you see an ice-cream shop. If you pass Town Hall, you've gone too far. Take the first left after the ice-cream shop and you'll be on Riverside Drive.

Faisal & Fahd: Thanks!

Fahd: I guess it's a good thing I suggested we stop for directions. We would have been driving in circles for ages.

Faisal: Don't make a big deal about it. I'm sure I would have figured it out eventually.

5. ______ literal  e. communicate by statement or suggestion
6. ______ masculine  f. category or type of living thing
7. ______ species  g. concerned with facts only
8. ______ witness  h. of or relating to men or boys

B. Check your answers with a partner. If you do not understand the meaning of a word, look it up in a dictionary.
The difference in the ways that men and women communicate has been the subject of countless books, magazine articles, talk show discussions, and jokes. These differences can sometimes make men and women seem mysterious to each other, and can occasionally make communication difficult and confusing. People often jokingly say that men and women are from different planets or that they are different species. But just what are these communication differences and what is their cause?

One basic reason men and women have such different ways of communicating is that they see the purpose of communication differently. Research shows that women use communication as a way of growing closer to people and establishing intimate relationships. Women tend to use language to share thoughts and feelings, and to be supportive. Meanwhile, men tend to see the goal of communication as accomplishing a task. Men most often use language to persuade, argue, convey facts, and demonstrate knowledge.

Although men do not tend to use communication to achieve closeness, they have their own way of bonding. In one study, 75 percent of the men surveyed said that their most meaningful experiences with friends came not through talking, but through shared activities. In a related study, researchers found that fathers tend to show affection to sons by helping them with tasks and challenges. Javier Morales's experiences certainly support this idea. Says Morales, "My dad and I are really close, but I wouldn't say we talk very much. We spend a lot of time together doing things. We spent all of last Saturday repairing my car, and this week we're going hiking together. My dad and I have a deep bond. Just because we're not talking doesn't mean we're not sharing important time together."

The content of what males and females talk about tends to be different as well. Researcher Deborah Tannen has found that while feminine talk tends to focus on feelings, relationships, and people, masculine talk tends to focus on sports, the economy, and facts.

Women talk to explore problems, but men do not. Instead, men talk to fix problems. This can sometimes cause problems in communication. Janet West, a freshman in college, remembers encountering this issue recently. "I told my brother Derek about a problem I was having with my studies. He immediately came up with possible solutions to the problem. Being told how to fix the problem was kind of frustrating because it wasn't what I was looking for. I asked him to stop trying to fix the problem and try talking with me about it instead. He seemed completely confused and said, 'Why bother talking about a problem unless you're trying to find a solution to it?'"

Another way in which men and women differ is in the way they listen. Research has shown that men tend to place all of their attention on one thing at a time, but women do not. Instead, women commonly divide their attention between different things. Since this comes so easily to women, they are sometimes frustrated when men struggle to do this. For example, a common complaint among women is that when a man is watching television, he often doesn't hear a question asked by the person sitting right beside him. Sakura Kumi has witnessed this many times in her house. Sakura says, "My mother used to get so frustrated trying to get my father's attention while he was watching TV, and I did too. So she got into the habit of standing in front of the TV and saying, 'Hiroshi, I'm about to ask you a question.' It's become sort of a family joke."

Research has shown that these communication differences can be partially explained by the different ways in which the male and female brains are structured and wired. For example, the left side of the brain, where logic and literal thinking are processed, tends to be stronger in men. Meanwhile, women tend to think with the right side, which is where comprehension is processed. The female brain also has more connections between the right and left sides, so their thought process is likely to be more complex.
Research has also shown that the different ways that boys and girls are raised has a significant impact on how they communicate. Girls are raised to recognize and be sensitive to the feelings of others. On the other hand, boys are taught to be more direct and goal-oriented. Being raised in such different ways is bound to create two different styles of communication.

While the differences in the way men and women communicate can sometimes cause confusion, these differences are also what help maintain a balance in communication. It ensures that a variety of topics and viewpoints are explored, feelings are expressed, and problems are discussed and solved. This balance is what makes communication so rich and interesting.

10 Writing

A. 1. How do we communicate? Do we mostly communicate through verbal or non-verbal language?

2. Try communicating these to your partner without speaking.
   • Can I have your pen, please?
   • Are you going to call me after school?
   • I went shopping yesterday.

3. Now write two of your own messages on a piece of paper, fold it, and set it aside or give it to your teacher. Use non-verbal language to communicate your message. Check. How successful were you?

4. “A picture is worth a thousand words.” Explain.

5. Read the text and find:
   • the main thesis statement
   • the supporting paragraphs
   • the arguments used

Verbal and non-verbal communication

When people talk about communication, the first thing that comes to mind is words or language. Language is our primary means of communication as human beings, which sets us apart from other species. However, as studies have shown, it is not the only means of communication.

Think about a photograph taken in the center of a town. It provides information about the buildings, stores and services, people and cars, plants, and all kinds of details if you choose to take the time to look at it more carefully. Now try describing the picture and everything you have identified in it to your friend or write about it. How long do you think it’s going to take you? Certainly a lot longer than it takes a photo to convey the same amount of information.

Suppose that you have just acquired the latest electronic gadget. Would you choose to tell your friend about it or show it to him or her? Usually, we choose to do the latter, i.e. show it to somebody and point out all the new, amazing features. In other words, pictures and objects can “speak for themselves” more efficiently and effectively than we can through verbal language.

However, there are situations where a different type of interaction is required, when, for example, you run into somebody you have not seen for some time. You probably want to talk about everything that has happened, ask him/her questions, and talk about people you know, and so on. This is definitely a case that requires verbal language.

On a partly different note, you see a friend you have not seen for some time at a distance, e.g. different escalators at the airport leading to different lounges. You have both checked through security and cannot go back; and you certainly don’t want to start shouting across the airport building. You want to get his/her cell phone number. You probably resort to gesturing by holding your hand next to your ear and pretending to talk; you point to the “phone,” point to your friend and use a hand gesture to signal “What?” pointing back to the imaginary phone. Your friend signals each number by holding up the appropriate number of fingers.

In other words, although language is important and allows us to communicate facts, feelings, thoughts, experiences, and practically everything and anything that we are interested in, it is not the only way we communicate with each other. As studies have shown, about 60 percent of human communication is carried out through non-verbal means, e.g. facial expression, gestures, or illustration. Maybe we should keep this in mind when we are “at a loss for words”: our eyes and overall expression can convey what we cannot express through words.
A Friend from Sweden and a Friend from Poland

My two friends are also colleagues. We work together as researchers on an educational project that encourages schools to communicate online with schools in other countries. Although they come from different cultures, both of them are not really what you might consider typical according to national stereotypes.

Erik, my Swedish friend, is a very friendly, outgoing person in a quiet manner. Janek, my Polish colleague, on the other hand, does not look very friendly at first but …

B. 1. Think of an Arab man or woman and a non-Arab man or woman you know personally or from TV.

Before Reading

1. Do you think it is easy for people to make real friends online? Why? Why not?
2. Do you text or call people you know? What kind of language do you use in each case?

The impact of a changing world on human language and communication

Recent research on the impact of online communication across cultures in Europe has revealed some very interesting findings.

Although, social networking and online communication has become the norm among young people nowadays, the formation of lasting friendships among peers appears to require face-to-face communication.

The project involved communication with partner schools in different countries. According to project participants, online communication and information exchange was effective for a period of time and undoubtedly provided the input and information needed. However, when it came to the formation of long-term friendships, they strongly felt that face-to-face communication was a key requirement; as was mobility, in other words travel to different countries.

The way one of the participants put it, “It’s different to find out about each other’s culture through reading, talking about it and exchanging pictures or videos, and different to actually experience it in person. It’s the day-to-day things that tell you more about people and their mindset.” These conclusions were reached after participants visited the countries where partner schools were located. As funding was limited, not all project participants were able to join.

All interviewees appreciated the accessible and affordable opportunities offered through technology and online communication but stressed the need for communication beyond cyberspace. Interestingly, young people nowadays take cyberspace for granted and consider more conventional, real world experiences to be more creative and rewarding. Overall, the conclusion reached pointed out that although technology “connects” people, lasting friendships require face-to-face contact to make initial connections more meaningful. This was further confirmed by the diminishing interest and involvement of the participants that had not been able to travel.

As expected, English was used as the common medium of communication. Project participants admitted to having been intimidated and reluctant to initiate conversation due to their language “inadequacies.” They found out that none of their peers from other countries were perfect either, but were only too willing to utilize all available resources to speak. So they quickly revisited their views on language competence and stopped being over-concerned with potential “errors.”

The task at hand required them to communicate with people that they had previously communicated with through email and video conferencing, under more controlled circumstances with teacher support, and time to check and edit their language. Face-to-face communication had to be spontaneous and genuine, so they were required to do their best, to listen, understand, and ask for clarification or repetition, use gestures or point to things if they could not recall words and so on. More importantly, their peers from other countries routinely resorted to the same strategies in conversation.

On occasion, when lost for words, their interlocutors would say: “text me”; this they could do without difficulty, using abbreviated language. They would then use the text message, as a basis to clarify meaning. Abbreviated language, this special kind of electronic shorthand, which often confuses older adults, is accessible to young people. In fact, it is the electronic variety of English as an international medium, and an identifying marker of generations that are natives to technology.

Animal Tales in American Culture

American culture has a rich assortment of animal tales that are passed on from generation to generation. Most of these tales originated centuries ago, but are still told to children today. Each tale has a moral—an important lesson to be learned.

Writing Prompt
Write an essay about tales involving animals in your culture. Include grammar points from Units 4, 5, and 6.

Write Your Essay
1. Think about the following questions: Where did the tale originate? What is the significance of the tale? Is there a moral?
2. Use a chart to organize your ideas. In the first column, write two or three tales about animals that you are interested in learning more about. Research these tales. Then write notes about the origin of each in the second column. Use these notes when you write your essay.
3. Write an outline for your essay, and then write a draft.
4. Have a partner read and comment on your draft. Use your partner’s comments and suggestions to revise your essay.

Developing Your Writing: Outlining an Essay
Writers use outlines to help them organize their thoughts before they begin writing. Outlines show the order in which topics will be introduced. They also include categories and subcategories to show the relationship between the different parts of the essay. Outlines are usually arranged from general points to more specific points. Outlines are also usually arranged by a system of numbers and letters, as in the example below.

I. Introduction
   A. There are numerous tales about animals in American culture.
   B. These tales often teach an important lesson/moral.

II. Body
   A. First tale: The Tortoise and the Hare
      1. origins of the tale
      2. significance/moral of the tale
   B. Second tale: The Lion and the Mouse
